NATIONAL CATHOLIC REPORTER

THE INDEPENDENT NEWS SOURCE

We are deeply grateful for your generosity in naming the National Catholic Reporter (NCR) in your estate plan. Your gift will create a lasting legacy that will keep NCR's voice alive for generations to come.

To support a specific fund:

If you would like your gift to support one of NCR's endowment funds, the Tom Fox Fund to Sustain Independent Catholic Journalism (in support of general editorial) or the Laudato Si' Fund (in support of EarthBeat, our climate crisis news initiative), please insert fund name (in suggested language at right) or contact NCR's Development Office for more information.

Naming the National Catholic Reporter in your will or trust:

The development team is pleased to provide you with the following suggested language to share with your attorney:

"I give, devise, and bequeath to the National Catholic Reporter, a 501(c)(3) tax-exempt corporation with a tax identification number of 43-0815211, located at 115 E. Armour Boulevard, Kansas City, Missouri, 64111, (c/o Development Office), or its successor organization, (the sum of $_____ / percentage of _____% of my estate) to be used for (general purposes or fund [see sidebar at left])."

Making a gift through your retirement account, life insurance policy, donor-advised fund, or bank account:

Please use the following instructions for naming NCR as a full or partial beneficiary:

1. Contact your plan administrator to request a change of beneficiary form.
2. Decide what percent of the plan's value (up to 100%) you would like to designate for NCR.
3. On the beneficiary designation form, include "National Catholic Reporter Publishing Co., Inc."
4. If required, include NCR's tax identification number (43-0815211) and address (115 E. Armour Boulevard, Kansas City, Missouri, 64111).

Please note: The National Catholic Reporter does not provide tax or legal advice. NCR encourages you to consult with your family, attorney, and/or financial planner when making a bequest to NCR.
