Opinion

by Dennis Coday

View Author Profile

dcoday@ncronline.org
Follow on Twitter at @dcoday

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

July 12, 2018
Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Attention Philadelphia-area readers: "At the Intersection" columnist Mariam Williams will be reading memoir excerpts and poetry at the next Chasing Windmills Reading Series, Tuesday, July 24, 7-9 pm, at The Black Sheep Pub & Restaurant, 247 S. 17th Street (17th and Latimer) in Philadelphia's Center City.

The reading is upstairs and follows a musical performance at 6 pm. No cover. Food and drinks are for sale off the menu.

Chasing Windmills, I am told, is "an eclectic, bi-monthly creative reading series that promotes community while showcasing brave local artists through a pulsating, sleek environment." The reading series aims to twist conventions and break silences while facilitating an evolving tango between writer and audience. How can you not check that out?

For more information, visit https://www.chasing-windmills.com.

Advertisement