

by Mick Forgey

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

July 3, 2019

Share on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

Our team of copy editors reads and posts most of what you see on the websites for National Catholic Reporter and Global Sisters Report (the NCR project focusing on women religious). The Copy Desk Daily highlights recommended news and opinion articles that have crossed our desks on their way to you.

Editorial: Our children are dying at the border. Bishops, where are you? The photo shows the bodies of drowned Salvadoran father Óscar Alberto Martínez Ramírez and his nearly 2-year-old daughter Valeria. This image was finally enough to compel an impassioned plea from the U.S. bishops' conference.

This Fourth, may American optimism and Christian hope prevail: "Optimism breeds generosity and imagination and our nation could use a shot of both," writes Michael Sean Winters. Cosign.

This week's parish roundup by Dan Morris-Young includes an anonymous reflection published by the Albany, New York, Diocese, that shares what it feels like to live with depression. It's a valuable read. Some imperatives worth repeating: "Be courageous. Know that you are not broken. Seek the help you need and if you think for a moment that someone you love is suffering from depression, talk to them about it."

Michael Smith calls Mario T. Garcia's Father Luis Olivares, A Biography "a well-researched account of the life of a man who grew to an awakening, who witnessed the terrible reality of the times and acted according to the Gospel": Author says he wrote Fr. Luis Olivares' biography to give Chicano students a hero.

At Global Sisters Report, Franciscan Sr. Ilia Delio wonders: What does a "religious solution" to the environmental problem look like in a church that seems to be riddled with dysfunction?

Advertisement

Want to keep updated with the latest news from the National Catholic Reporter? Sign up here for news updates by email — including one that will send you Copy Desk Daily every Monday through Friday.