News

by Peter Feuerherd

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

July 10, 2019
Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

A pattern emerging across urban America: Ethnic Catholic neighborhoods are changing, with the newcomers often younger and less-tied to old traditions. They bring gentrification, excitement and energy, but not much in the way of formal faith experience. Read how the church is responding to one such neighborhood, this one in Minneapolis.

A Los Angeles workshop promotes the art of chant in sacred music.

In Buffalo, lay Catholics respond to the sex abuse crisis by asserting leadership in their parish.

Bishop Barry Knestout of Richmond, Virginia, orders that church buildings can no longer be named for church officials. That honor is to be reserved for canonized saints.

Parishioners from the suburbs south of Chicago work together on a Habitat for Humanity project.

A parish in Maine receives a Matthew 25 Award for its outreach to the poor.

[Peter Feuerherd is NCR news editor. His email address is pfeuerherd@ncronline.org.]

Editor's note: We can send you an email alert every time The Field Hospital is posted. Go to this page and follow directions: Email alert sign-up.

Advertisement

This story appears in the The Field Hospital feature series. View the full series.