News

Clockwise from upper left: NCR opinion editor Olga Segura, Dwayne David Paul of the Collaborative Center for Justice, and Michael Vazquez of the Human Rights Campaign, participate in a livestream event on Jan. 28. (NCR screenshot/YouTube)

by Brittany Wilmes

Engagement Editor

View Author Profile

Join the Conversation

Send your thoughts to Letters to the Editor. Learn more

January 28, 2021

Share on BlueskyShare on FacebookShare on TwitterEmail to a friendPrint

In this livestream, NCR's Olga Segura hosts a conversation with Dwayne David Paul of the Collaborative Center for Justice, and Michael Vazquez of the Human Rights Campaign, about the advice they'd offer to President Joe Biden.

Background reading:

- The community policing model, recycled by politicians like Biden for decades, promotes a dangerous vision of community that further marginalizes already vulnerable and overpoliced communities, Paul wrote in our Building a Common Future series.
- Vazquez co-wrote his commentary with Alphonso David, president of the Human Rights Campaign: "The majority of U.S. Catholics, including President-elect Joe Biden, understands that supporting pro-LGBTQ policies is in direct alignment with Catholic teaching on he common good."
- Click here to read the entire series, in which Catholic politicians, activists and scholars to offer advice to Biden in a series that takes its title from Pope Francis' encyclical, Fratelli Tutti: "Building a Common Future."

If you enjoyed today's conversation, consider supporting future events by becoming an NCR Forward member during our Winter Member Drive. Your contributions make programming like today's event possible. We appreciate your support!

Advertisement

This story appears in the Building a Common Future feature series. View the full series.