Pope Francis' visit to Luxembourg and Belgium Sept. 26-29 will come just 13 days after wrapping up the longest trip of his pontificate.

After visiting Indonesia, Papua New Guinea, Timor-Leste and Singapore Sept. 3-13, the pope will travel to the tiny European nation of Luxembourg Sept. 26 and neighboring Belgium Sept. 26-29, traveling to Brussels, Leuven and Louvain-la-Neuve.

He will stick to the traditional essentials: greeting top-level government officials, meeting with local Catholics, celebrating an open-air Mass and meeting privately with his fellow Jesuits.

The main focus of the trip to Belgium is to mark the founding of the oldest Catholic university in the world, the Catholic University of Leuven, which celebrates its 600th anniversary during the 2024-2025 academic year.

Founded in 1425 with a decree by Pope Martin V, today the university is split into the Dutch-speaking KU Leuven, located in Leuven, and the French-speaking UCLouvain, which was moved to Louvain-la-Neuve. The pope will meet with professors at the Dutch-speaking school and students at the French-speaking campus.

Lingering tensions between the Dutch-speaking Flemish in the north and the French-speaking Walloons in the south have led to constitutional amendments granting these regions formal recognition and autonomy, according to The CIA Factbook.

Of Belgium's nearly 12 million residents, 57% are Catholic, more than 5% are Protestant and other Christian denominations, 6.8% are Muslim, 9% are atheist and 20% are nonbeliever/agnostic, according to the factbook.

The capital, Brussels, serves as the capital of the European Union, hosting the headquarters of the European Commission, the Council of the European Union, the formal seat of European Parliament, the European Council. It is also the headquarters of NATO.

Along with Belgium, the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg was among the six countries which founded the European Economic Community in 1957. It then became part of the European Union.

About half the size of Delaware, the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg is a constitutional monarchy and nearly three-quarters of its population of 670,000 are Christian. Of those who are Christian, 63.8% are Catholic. About 2.6% of the population are Muslims and 23.4% of the population do not identify with any religion, according to EU statistics.

Francis created the country's first cardinal when he elevated its archbishop to the College of Cardinals in 2019. Cardinal Jean-Claude Hollerich, 65, is a Jesuit, a member of the pope's advisory Council of Cardinals and the relator general of the Synod of Bishops on synodality.
