

Science, religion and the mystical

Dennis Coday | Aug. 25, 2009 NCR Today

Exactly 400 years ago today, on Aug. 25, 1609, the Italian astronomer and philosopher Galilei Galileo showed Venetian merchants his new creation, a telescope -- the instrument that was to bring him both scientific immortality and, more immediately, a whole lot of trouble.

To mark this anniversary, NCR is re-releasing an Podcast interview Tom Fox did with Beatrice Bruteau, a Christian contemplative, passionate scientist and philosopher, in 2007. They speak about the creative impulse behind the evolutionary design of the universe.

It's an Encore NCR Podcast: Science, fear, God and the mystical [1]

Source URL (retrieved on 07/25/2017 - 18:11): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/ncr-today/science-religion-and-mystical>

Links:

[1] <http://ncronline.org/taxonomy/term/178>