

Our hunger for wisdom Part -- 2

NCR Podcasts | Aug. 26, 2009

NCR Podcasts

Bruno Barnhart

Episode 2: The paradox of wisdom (31 min.)

Look at First Corinthians, verse 1, Fr. Barnhart tells Tom Fox. "Usually you think of wisdom as a kind of fattening, by which we get larger and larger in our minds and we can bring more and more things together into a synthetic vision. But Paul seems to be talking about the opposite. He's talking about falling into a black hole. That's the paradox of Christian wisdom. All the wisdom disappears at a certain point, because we live in a world and an economy of faith. Wisdom seems to go on the drain on you. But it recovers when you need it. It is the wisdom of the cross."

- Click here to add this podcast to your iTunes. [1]
- Right click to download to your computer: Full episode \(31 min.\) [2]
- Listen to Episode 1 [3]

Our hunger for wisdom

Bruno Barnhart is a Camaldolese monk of New Camaldoli Hermitage in Big Sur, Calif. He is the author of The Good Wine: Reading John from the Center (Paulist, 1993) and Second Simplicity: The Inner Shape of Christianity (Paulist 1999), and co-editor of Purity of Heart and Contemplation: A Monastic Dialogue Between Christian and Asian Traditions (Continuum, 2001). His latest book is The Future of Wisdom: Toward a Rebirth of Sapiential Christianity (Continuum, 2007).

About the Book

A review in Library Journal called Barnhart's The Future of Wisdom "a must for most collections." It said, Barnhart's "new book, a substantial contribution toward the renewal of Christian spirituality, is rather more controversial than it might first appear, given Barnhart's good Catholic background. Barnhart seeks and desires no less than a wholehearted rediscovery and reinvigoration of the mystical wisdom tradition that was once a powerful component of Christian spirituality, both Western and Eastern."

The Second Coming

By William Butler Yeats

Turning and turning in the widening gyre
The falcon cannot hear the falconer;
Things fall apart; the centre cannot hold;
Mere anarchy is loosed upon the world,
The blood-dimmed tide is loosed, and everywhere
The ceremony of innocence is drowned;
The best lack all conviction, while the worst
Are full of passionate intensity.
Surely some revelation is at hand;
Surely the Second Coming is at hand.
The Second Coming! Hardly are those words out
When a vast image out of Spiritus Mundi
Troubles my sight; somewhere in sands of the desert
A shape with lion body and the head of a man,
A gaze blank and pitiless as the sun,
Is moving its slow thighs, while all about it
Reel shadows of indignant desert birds.
The darkness drops again; but now I know
That twenty centuries of stony sleep
Were vexed to nightmare by a rocking cradle,
And what rough beast, its hour come round at last,
Slouches towards Bethlehem to be born?

Support independent reporting on important issues.

Source URL (retrieved on 07/24/2017 - 03:52): <https://www.ncronline.org/news/our-hunger-wisdom-part-2>

Links:

- [1] <itpc://ncrnews.org/ncrpodcasts/feeds/ncrpodcasts.xml>
- [2] http://ncrnews.org/ncrpodcasts/barnhart_episode2_highspeed_option.mp3
- [3] <http://ncronline.org/node/14556>
- [4] <https://www.ncronline.org/donate?clickSource=article-end>