

The world's eyes on Tulsa

Dennis Coday | Aug. 27, 2009 NCR Today

The globalization of information is something we live with every day, so much so that we take it for granted. But every once in a while, some thing happens that draws one's attention to the fact that news, information, is global and that diverse people have common interests

As a case in point, take a look at this sampling of sources and headlines for the last two days or so:

From NCR: Okla. bishop no longer faces people at Mass

From NewsOK.com: Tulsa Bishop to no longer face congregation during Mass

From InfoCatólica: El obispo de Tulsa, Oklahoma, reinstaura la posición «Ad Orientem»

From RKnieuws: Amerikaanse bisschop draagt mis weer op 'met rug naar het volk'

From Le Nouvelliste: À Tulsa (Oklahoma), l'évêque célèbre désormais « ad orientem »

From Agenzia di Stampa Asca: Vescovo usa celebrera' messa con le 'spalle al popolo'

From La Vie: Au Far West, la messe passe à l'Est

From TTX Công Giáo Việt Nam: Thánh Lễ Quay Về Hướng Đông (Ch'nh trong chi?u h??ng ?y, ??c Cha Edward Slattery, ...)

I guess that it just goes to show you that a good story has legs.

Source URL (retrieved on 06/24/2017 - 09:41): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/ncr-today/worlds-eyes-tulsa>