A Religion News Service Story begins:

No place in civil debate for Holocaust comparisons [1]

WASHINGTON -- Religious leaders are urging their colleagues and politicians to keep comparisons to Nazism and the Holocaust out of American public policy debates.

The Interfaith Alliance responded to a recent onslaught of references to Adolf Hitler and the Holocaust, particularly as an analogy to the current discussion on health care reform.

And let's keep these comparisons about of debates of religious issues too.

Surely we can all agree on this.
