

Published on National Catholic Reporter (<https://www.ncronline.org>)

December 10, 2009 at 10:09am

---

Coup in Pakistan would be disaster for Afghanistan

by Dennis Coday

NCR Today

Writing in Toronto's Globe and Mail, Tarek Fatah offers a sobering analysis of events in Pakistan that could have dire consequences for the war in Afghanistan.

A military coup is unfolding in Pakistan, but, this time, there is no rumbling of tanks on the streets of Islamabad. Instead, it seems the military is using a new strategy for regime change in Pakistan, one that will have adverse consequences for Western troops deployed in Afghanistan.

A year after rogue elements of Pakistan's intelligence services disrupted Indian-Pakistani peace talks by staging the Mumbai massacre, the democratically elected government of President Asif Zardari is facing a putsch from within its ranks, engineered by the men who run Pakistan's infamous military-industrial complex.

The men who wish to replace Mr. Zardari represent the religious right-wing backers of the Taliban and al-Qaeda, adding a new obstacle in Barack Obama's war effort in Afghanistan.

Read the full article: A military coup in Pakistan?

Advertisement

---

Source URL (retrieved on 08/17/2017 - 01:18): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/ncr-today/coup-pakistan-would-be-disaster-afghanistan>

Links:

[1] <https://www.ncronline.org/donate?clickSource=article-end>