

March Madness

Tom Gallagher | Mar. 9, 2010 NCR Today

It's finally here (and I'm not talking about the Catholic corporate craziness within the church). I'm talking about college basketball. It always seems to arrive just when we need it the most -- the middle of Lent. Naturally, Catholic colleges are among those vying to win it all, or at least get into the NCCA tournament and advance farther than they did last year.

Here's a quick selection of Catholic college basketball stories that have appeared today or yesterday:

The Big East's Big Spenders? Just Check Out the Standing [1]

St. Mary's Beats Gonzaga to Capture One of the Four NCAA Berths [2]

Seton Hall's Bobby Gonzalez knows how to rub folks the wrong way [3]

In the words of Dick Vitale, "Let the games begin, baaaaby!"

Source URL (retrieved on 05/27/2017 - 19:56): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/ncr-today/march-madness>

Links:

[1] <http://www.nytimes.com/2010/03/09/sports/ncaabasketball/09bigeast.html?th&emc=th>

[2] http://www.bloomberg.com/apps/news?pid=20601079&sid=aU3HkPSsLh_Y

[3] <http://content.usatoday.com/communities/campusrivalry/post/2010/03/seton-halls-bobby-gonzalez-knows-how-to-rub-folks-the-wrong-way/1>