

Compromised hierarchy needs relational wisdom of women

Charlene Spretnak | Jun. 17, 2010 Examining the Crisis

If the church is to emerge from the crisis of the clergy sex abuse scandal and cover up and enter a new day, rather than being permanently degraded and diminished by it, a vital project of renewal is needed. It would involve all Catholics -- laity, nuns and priests, including the hierarchy -- in an energetic search for creative and vital means of replacing patterns of domination and control with more cooperative ways of interacting.

A regenerated church would honor and ensconce the talents of both sexes throughout the levels of management as well as all areas of pastoral care.

Read the full essay: Compromised hierarchy needs relational wisdom of women [1].

Source URL (retrieved on 05/22/2017 - 20:17): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/examining-crisis/compromised-hierarchy-needs-relational-wisdom-women>

Links:

[1] <http://ncronline.org/node/18456>