

Some GOP Sanity on Immigration

Michael Sean Winters | Aug. 10, 2010 Distinctly Catholic

Glad to see that some former Bush Administration officials, as well as Michael Gerson, are pushing back against the Nativists [1] in their party who have suggested re-writing the Fourteenth Amendment to deny citizenship to children born of undocumented parents.

“The 14th Amendment is a great legacy of the Republican party,” Mark McKinnon told Politico. “It is a shame and an embarrassment that the GOP now wants to amend it for starkly political reasons.” Let’s hope some elected officials — and perhaps former President Bush himself — jump up and second McKinnon’s sentiments.

Source URL (retrieved on 05/25/2017 - 18:47): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/some-gop-sanity-immigration>

Links:

[1] <http://www.politico.com/news/stories/0810/40855.html>