

Krauthammer Gets Ugly

Michael Sean Winters | Nov. 19, 2010 Distinctly Catholic

In this morning's Washington Post, Charles Krauthammer [1] holds up John Tyner as a new pop hero. Tyner is the man who videotaped his search at an airport and told the inspector "Don't touch my junk."

Krauthammer suggests that the complicated and, by design, invasive searches at airports have nothing to do with security and everything to do with political correctness. "Dont's touch my junk, you airport security goon - my package belongs to no one but me, and do you really think I'm a Nigerian nut job preparing for my 72-virgin orgy by blowing my johnson to kingdom come?"

I have only one question for Mr. Tyner - and for Mr. Krauthammer. Would you feel the same way if you were seated on a plane next to Timothy McVeigh?

Source URL (retrieved on 07/20/2017 - 23:36): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/krauthammer-gets-ugly>

Links:

[1] <http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2010/11/18/AR2010111804494.html>