

Oh Please, Oh Please, Oh Please

Michael Sean Winters | Jan. 6, 2011 | Distinctly Catholic

Congresswoman Michelle Bachmann is considering a bid [1] for the presidency. Bachmann is a leader of the Tea Party foolishness that has beclouded sensible political thought in this country. She epitomizes the kind of self-satisfied provocateur who thinks everything that comes from her mouth is an oracle, that her rationales, such as they are, for her political positions have a "QED" quality to them, as if blathering platitudes not only answers complicated questions but effectively ends the debate. She is allergic to nuance and hostile to argument. Please, let her run. Go Michelle. Nothing could better demonstrate the limits of the Tea Party worldview than the sustained glare of a presidential run.

Source URL (retrieved on 05/30/2017 - 02:32): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/oh-please-oh-please-oh-please>

Links:

[1] <http://www.theatlantic.com/politics/archive/2011/01/michele-bachmann-for-president/68901/>