

People in Glass Bordellos Should Not Throw Stones

Michael Sean Winters | Feb. 23, 2011 | Distinctly Catholic

Former House Speaker and potential presidential candidate Newt Gingrich was asked to address [1]the, ehem, disconnect between his defense of marriage and his personal conduct. Every sinner has a saint inside waiting to come out, but it is hard to see how Gingrich could survive a presidential run if questions like this are going to be asked, and they will be asked. If Mr. Gingrich was a little less convinced he was right about everything, he might not be such a target for the charge of hypocrisy. But a Newt without the certainty would not be Newt. The rest of us just have to be careful to walk around the broken glass everywhere.

Source URL (retrieved on 07/24/2017 - 02:04): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/people-glass-bordellos-should-not-throw-stones>

Links:

[1] <http://www.politico.com/news/stories/0211/50021.html>