

Budget Cuts & the Church

Michael Sean Winters | Apr. 4, 2011 | Distinctly Catholic

So long as our nation suffers under the idolatry of the market, and the superstition that higher taxes on the rich will harm the economy, we are destined to see cuts in government programs that help the poor. Over at the Tablet [1], Terry Philpot looks at how the Church in England and Wales is dealing with their government's budget cuts to such programs.
