

Mary's Fears Today's Parental Fears, Too

Arthur Jones | May. 12, 2011

In Full of Grace: Encountering Mary in Faith, Art and Life, Judith Dupre writes:

?Mary?s experience as a mother, her intense joy as well as her unfathomable grief, shed light on the unavoidable fate of all parents -- to love but lack the ability to ever fully understand of protect, their children.?

Dupré?s observation touches a parent?s worst fears. Comments?
