

Christian Ethics Meets Peter Singer

Michael Sean Winters | May. 24, 2011 | Distinctly Catholic

Professor Charles Camosy has a post up at the Catholic Moral Theology blog [1] about a recent meeting at Oxford at which a group of Christian moral theologians dialogued with Peter Singer. There was, it appears, no profound meeting of the minds, but Singer admitted some common ground on issues of global poverty and the like. Such encounters are necessary if we Catholics are to do more than preach to the choir.

---

Source URL (retrieved on 05/24/2017 - 20:24): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/christian-ethics-meets-peter-singer>

Links:

[1] <http://catholicmoraltheology.com/a-quick-report-from-christian-ethics-engages-peter-singer-this-past-week-at-oxford/>