

Fox News & the Prospect of Default

Michael Sean Winters | Jul. 19, 2011 | Distinctly Catholic

I try to check in with Fox News every night while surfing the channels. Last night I watched Sean Hannity preside over a discuss of the impending default crisis. Two of his panelists, unable to cite a single reputable economist, simply repeated the Tea Party talking point that a failure to raise the debt ceiling need not cause economic catastrophe or a government default. Mr. Hannity egged them on. None of the three had the honesty to point out that even Cong. Paul Ryan's budget, already passed by the House, would require Congress to raise the debt ceiling. None of the three engaged the warnings issued by the credit rating agencies. All they offered was a complete and thorough denial of reality. Hannity is unhinged from reality.

Next thing you know, Mr. Hannity and his acolytes will deny the reality of climate change.

Next thing you know, Mr. Hannity and his viewers will deny that President Obama was born in the U.S.

Source URL (retrieved on 07/27/2017 - 08:19): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/fox-news-prospect-default>