

Santorum staffer: Woman can't be elected president

Sr. Rose Pacatte | Jan. 18, 2012 NCR Today

In the daily round of emails and Facebook posting comes this news about a Rick Santorum Iowa staffer's opinion [1] that children would be harmed if a woman became president, referring to Michele Bachmann's former GOP bid.

Although Rev. Jamie Johnson, a pastor and the email's author, claims the statement in an email to one person was taken out of context, his view is upsetting people the blogosphere. And he is not backing down.

The email at the heart of the controversy reads in part: "Is it Gods highest desire, that is, His biblically expressed will ... to have a woman rule the institutions of the Family, the Church, and the State?"

Source URL (retrieved on 06/29/2017 - 05:51): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/ncr-today/santorum-staffer-woman-cant-be-elected-president>

Links:

[1] http://firstread.msnbc.msn.com/_news/2012/01/14/10158320-santorum-staffers-private-email-about-gender-presidential-politics-sets-off-bitter-fight?ocid=twitter