

Supporters, critics and a step-by-step on how to help the sisters

Alice Popovici | May. 7, 2012

Ever since Fr. James Martin of America Magazine launched a Twitter campaign to support the nuns criticized in a Vatican report a couple of weeks ago, praise for the sisters has been pouring in. Just in case you missed it:

The Twitter feed has been relatively quiet in the last couple of days, but momentum is building behind a series of prayer vigils [1] that kick off tomorrow, organized by The Nun Justice Project with the help of local Catholic groups. Events were originally planned in a handful of cities, but the list grew to about a dozen over the weekend.

For more suggestions on how to help the sisters, see this list on the Sojourners blog [2], by Sr. Janet Gottschalk of Washington, D.C.-based Alliance for Justice.

Source URL (retrieved on 07/29/2017 - 06:55): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/supporters-critics-and-step-step-how-help-sisters>

Links:

[1] <http://nunjustice.tumblr.com/>

[2] <http://sojo.net/blogs/2012/05/02/what-you-can-do-support-network-and-catholic-sisters>