

Why We Love Benedict XVI!

Michael Sean Winters | Dec. 5, 2012 Distinctly Catholic

This, from the Holy Father's address to the Pontifical Council of Justice and Peace:

"The man of today is considered primarily from a biological point of view, or as 'human capital,' a 'resource,' a cog in a productive and financial machine that dominates him...New ideologies -- such as the hedonistic and egoistic one of sexual and reproductive rights, or that of a disorderly financial capitalism that transgresses politics and dismantles the real economy -- contribute to make the employee and his work seem 'minor' goods and to undermine the natural foundations of society, especially the family."

Source URL (retrieved on 06/27/2017 - 13:02): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/why-we-love-benedict-xvi>