

Be Afraid, Be Very Afraid

Michael Sean Winters | Jan. 14, 2013 | Distinctly Catholic

Jim Vandehei, Mike Allen and Jake Sherman, at Politico, report that:

"The idea of allowing the country to default by refusing to increase the debt limit is getting more widespread and serious traction among House Republicans than people realize, though GOP leaders think shutting down the government is the much more likely outcome of the spending fights this winter."

Read more: <http://www.politico.com/story/2013/01/behind-the-curtain-house-gop-eyes-default-shutdown-86116.html#ixzz2Hxgoj4kI> [1]

<https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/be-afraid-be-very-afraid>

Links:

[1] <http://www.politico.com/story/2013/01/behind-the-curtain-house-gop-eyes-default-shutdown-86116.html#ixzz2Hxgoj4kI>