

Immigration & Family Values

Michael Sean Winters | Feb. 4, 2013 | Distinctly Catholic

John Gehring and Kristin Heyer have an op-ed in the San Jose Mercury-News [1] that makes the point that those who are concerned about family values need to get on board comprehensive immigration reform. This is an argument that, for me, is the most compelling - it is certainly un-Christian, and I believe un-American, to separate wives from their husbands, and parents from their children, because of differing legal status within a family. I hope Congressman Barletta and other anti-immigrant members of Congress who are also Catholic are getting an earful from their bishops.

Source URL (retrieved on 05/24/2017 - 08:57): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/immigration-family-values>

Links:

[1] http://www.mercurynews.com/opinion/ci_22484739/kristin-heyer-and-john-gehring-family-values-case