

To Show People How to Love

Michael Sean Winters | Apr. 2, 2013 Distinctly Catholic

Over at CatholicMoralTheology.com [1], a beautiful essay from Paul Gondreau, a theology prof at Providence College who is in Rome for the year at that school's Rome campus. His son, who has cerebral palsy, was the young man that Pope Francis picked up and kissed in the crowd as the popemobile made its trek through St. Peter's Square on Easter Sunday, a video that has gone viral. Professor Gondreau writes so beautifully about what it means to have a special needs child. Bring a box of kleenex before reading. Powerful, Christian witness.

Source URL (retrieved on 05/24/2017 - 02:49): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/show-people-how-love>

Links:

[1] <http://catholicmoraltheology.com/a-special-vocation-to-show-people-how-to-love/>