

Infanticide Nightmare

Michael Sean Winters | May. 6, 2013 Distinctly Catholic

This article at CatholicMoralTheology.com [1] by Charles Camosy shows, again, that the truly scary thing is that the people who advocate this horror are not "bad people," in the common meaning of that phrase. Yet, they embrace this horror as a right and a good. It is frightening that our culture seems more outraged by the prospect of the Keystone pipeline than it does by the horror of infanticide.

Source URL (retrieved on 07/20/2017 - 15:59): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/infanticide-nightmare>

Links:

[1] <http://catholicmoraltheology.com/what-i-learned-about-infanticide-on-my-trip-to-australia/>