

Hertzberg & Francis

Michael Sean Winters | Jun. 13, 2013 Distinctly Catholic

Over at The New Yorker, [1] my old friend Rick Hertzberg wonders about where he, an atheist, is going after he dies in light of the Pope's recent remarks. As ever, Hertzberg's prose is a joy to read. But, there is something else at work here: Papa Francesco is capturing the imagination of people who think of the Catholic Church as the Easter bunny with real estate. I do not expect to see Hertzberg sitting next to me at Latin Mass next Sunday, but who knows?

Source URL (retrieved on 05/28/2017 - 01:57): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/hertzberg-francis>

Links:

[1] <http://www.newyorker.com/online/blogs/comment/2013/06/the-truth-about-pope-francis-and-atheists.html>