

Can Dems Flip Georgia?

Michael Sean Winters | Aug. 15, 2013 Distinctly Catholic

Nate Cohn, at the New Republic [1], thinks Michelle Nunn may be the Democrats best chance to flip a Senate seat next November, in part because of demographics and in part because her Dad was the kind of Democrat who could win in Georgia. Mostly, however, the reason is that the GOP is likely to nominate the kind of off-the-charts crazy right wing candidate that cost the GOP potential pickups in Nevada, Colorado, Delaware and Alaska already.
