Michael Sean Winters | Sep. 30, 2013 Distinctly Catholic

Robert Samuelson has a great op-ed [1] in this morning's Washington Post about the divergence between those who create wealth and those who engage in predatory behavior, redistributing upward the wealth created by others. This addresses what I have called the "financialization" of the economy. It is the most severe cancer eating at the heart of the market economy and one that our pro-market ideologues tend to ignore.
