

Are conservatives looking for an agenda change?

Dennis Coday | Oct. 30, 2013 NCR Today

Tip of the hat to Dave Gibson [1] over at Religion News Service. He highlights a speech by Sen. Mike Lee of Utah, a leading conservative in the Republican Party, at the Heritage Foundation. Gibson says Lee maps out "a road to reform for the conservative movement. He focused on economic populism and bread-and-butter issues. One thing noticeably absent: culture war rhetoric."

Read a transcript of the speech here. [2]

Is change in the air? The headline on the National Review Online reads: "What?s Next for Conservatives: A reform agenda."

Source URL (retrieved on 07/26/2017 - 15:55): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/ncr-today/are-conservatives-looking-agenda-change>

Links:

[1] <http://www.religionnews.com/2013/10/30/nsa-vatican-pope-parody-culture-war-truce-wednesdays-religion-news-roundup/>

[2] <http://www.nationalreview.com/node/362515/print>