

"Our Lampedusas of the Heart"

Michael Sean Winters | Nov. 7, 2013 Distinctly Catholic

In his current column at The Tidings [1], Archbishop Jose Gomez of Los Angeles looks to the Holy Father's pastoral visit - and pastoral words - at Lampedusa and asks if we in the U.S. are not becoming indifferent to the sufferings of our own immigrants here in the U.S. Earlier this morning, I suggested the USCCB get as many bishops as possible to make a visit to the border, spend a couple of days visiting with families there, going to detention centers, etc., to dramatize the plight our immigrants face and the urgency of enacting immigration reform. I suspect Archbishop Gomez would be the first to sign up.

Source URL (retrieved on 06/27/2017 - 06:02): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/our-lampedusas-heart?splash=>

Links:

[1] <http://www.the-tidings.com/index.php/viewpoints/cardinals-archbishop-gomez/3928-our-lampedusas-of-the-heart>