

Help rename this new film on nuns

Kate Childs Graham | Dec. 11, 2013 NCR Today

A few weeks ago, I had the privilege to fly to Chicago to be a part of a roundtable conversation about the film formerly known as "Sister." The film follows the journey of three Catholic sisters who may be pretty familiar to you: Simone Campbell, Chris Schenk and Jean Hughes.

These women are balancing a deep faith and a thirst for justice with a church hierarchy that, well, isn't always that supportive. The trailer will leave you wanting more. Watch and see.

The filmmakers are searching for a new title for their film, and they are hosting an online contest to gather your ideas. Some submissions so far:

- "Fighting in Good Faith"
- "Justice Sisters"
- "When You Pray, Move Your Feet"
- "Holy Mischief"
- "Something Sacred is at Stake"
- "Keepers of the Faith"
- "Radical Habits"
- "Avowed Faith"

Got a better idea? Click here to share. [1] Contest ends at midnight Sunday. Prizes include a copy of the film when it is finished and film swag that will, of course, feature the winning title.

Source URL (retrieved on 06/25/2017 - 12:21): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/ncr-today/help-rename-new-film-nuns>

Links:

[1] <http://sisterthefilm.com/titlecontest>