

The Other S. Court Case

Michael Sean Winters | Jan. 14, 2014 | Distinctly Catholic

Many Catholics were disappointed that the U.S. Supreme Court declined to hear a case seeking to reinstate an Arizona law that barred abortions after 20 months. The law was overturned by a lower court. Others are focused on a case the Supreme Court will hear about whether or not restrictions on abortion protests violate free speech. But, the Supreme Court Monday decided to hear a case that should garner the attention of all Catholics, and likely will catch the pope's attention too. The Court will decide a case involving culture hedge funds that avoid settlements in sovereign debt negotiations, holding out for a larger wad of cash. The case the court will hear involves Argentina. Look for Papa Francesco to be more than a little interested in the outcome. Here is the press release [1] from our friends at JubileeUSA.

Source URL (retrieved on 06/23/2017 - 05:45): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/other-s-court-case>

Links:

[1] <http://www.jubileeusa.org/press/press-item/article/supreme-court-decides-to-hear-argentine-objection-to-predatory-hedge-funds-targeting-argentine-asset.html>