

Hale Remembers "Benedict the Meek"

John McCarthy | Feb. 13, 2014 NCR Today

Christopher Hale, a Senior Fellow at Catholics in Alliance for the Common Good, reminds us that a little over a year ago Pope Benedict XVI performed "the greatest papal act in the history of the Catholic Church." His thoughts are over at TIME and are well worth a read.

"If the Church is indeed undergoing a revolution, it is important to note that Francis himself did not fire the first shot. That feat belonged to his predecessor, Benedict XVI, who a year ago...announced his stunning decision to voluntarily renounce his office."

Hale argues that, "by renouncing the throne of Saint Peter, it was Benedict--not Francis--who performed the greatest act of papal humility in 2013."

Read more HERE. [1]

---

Source URL (retrieved on 07/21/2017 - 00:22): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/ncr-today/hale-remembers-benedict-meek>

Links:

[1] <http://ideas.time.com/2014/02/11/remember-benedict-the-meek/>