

Kudos to Crisis Mag

Michael Sean Winters | Feb. 26, 2014 Distinctly Catholic

It is not very often I find myself nodding in agreement with an article published by Crisis magazine, but this article by William Newton [1] on the HHS mandate makes some of the points I have been making regarding the HHS mandate, especially the fact that compliance with the mandate could not constitute illicit material cooperation with evil and the dangers of the argument that our opposition to the mandate should be rooted in a conscience exemption. Kudos to Crisis for publishing this fine piece.

Source URL (retrieved on 05/29/2017 - 00:53): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/kudos-crisis-mag>

Links:

[1] <http://www.crisismagazine.com/2013/a-foreign-view-of-the-hhs-mandate>