

Is Tea Party Binge Over?

Michael Sean Winters | Feb. 28, 2014 Distinctly Catholic

In this morning's Washington Post, [1] Michael Gerson makes the case that the GOP is getting over its Tea Party hangover. I hope he is right. But, there is this one troubling sentence in his article that gives one pause. He writes: "A plurality of Republicans in primaries still identify with the tea party movement." Speaker Boehner may be able to take on the tea party caucus in the House. I am not so sure a presidential aspirant can take on the tea party voters in the primaries.

Source URL (retrieved on 06/23/2017 - 23:11): <https://www.ncronline.org/blogs/distinctly-catholic/tea-party-binge-over>

Links:

[1] http://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/michael-gerson-republicans-have-a-tea-party-hangover/2014/02/27/9d06b73c-9fed-11e3-9ba6-800d1192d08b_story.html?hpid=z5